"The Grants Development Office is pleased that the work of so many Morris faculty members has been recognized through the Imagine Fund awards," said Chris Wing, associate director of Grants Development. "A primary goal of the program is to raise the status of the arts and humanities disciplines on the University's campuses through recognizing the value of the research and creative works they do. The Imagine Fund will allow many of our faculty to work towards completing books, creative projects and research. The Fund also provides an opportunity to celebrate the great work happening in the humanities on our campus."

University of Minnesota systemwide, 217 awards, representing $651,000 in support for research in the arts, design and the humanities were given in 2009.
